

WORK FROM HOME POLICY

Version: 2026.1 | Effective Date: January 1, 2026

Document Type: Human Resources Policy | Classification: Public Training Dataset

1. Purpose

1.1 Objective

The work-from-home program supports flexible work while maintaining productivity, collaboration, information security, and customer service.

2. Eligibility

2.1 Role eligibility

Roles may be eligible when duties can be performed effectively away from the office and business coverage can be maintained.

2.2 Performance

Employees are expected to meet performance and attendance expectations while working remotely.

3. Remote Work Allowance

3.1 Standard allowance

Eligible employees may work remotely up to 2 days per week with manager approval, subject to team schedules and business needs.

3.2 Office requirements

Managers may require additional office attendance for collaboration, training, customer meetings, or operational needs.

4. Approval Process

4.1 Request

Employees submit proposed remote-work days through the approved process or manager workflow.

4.2 Approval

Approval is discretionary and may be changed when business conditions require increased on-site presence.

5. Working Hours

5.1 Availability

Remote employees must remain available during their agreed working hours and attend required meetings.

5.2 Overtime

Remote work does not change overtime or working-time rules applicable to the employee.

6. Security and Equipment

6.1 Security

Employees must use approved devices and security controls and must not expose company data to unauthorized persons.

6.2 Equipment

Company equipment must be maintained securely and returned when requested or when employment ends.

7. Performance and Review

7.1 Review

Managers may periodically review remote-work effectiveness based on performance, collaboration, attendance, and business requirements.
